Over the past few years, mental health has come to describe not only severe mental conditions, but also an aspect of overall health. As a result, the general population's understanding and categorization of mental health has broadened (Spector, 2020).

Globally, it is estimated 10.7% of the world's population suffered from at least one mental illness

- Sometimes the community members find it difficult to address their issues to a psychiatrist which again leads to fear and anxiety.
- and they are judgmental
- Do not treat equally
- misinterpret their sexuality
- do not use their preferred pronouns.
